Read the passage carefully. Answer the questions in complete sentences based on the passage.

Ronny took a deep breath as he was led into the compound of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA). There were dogs everywhere. As he walked alongside the rows of cages, each dog pressed its face against the front of the enclosure. They were eager for some attention. For some time, Ronny was confused. He had not realised that he would have to choose from so many dogs.

Suddenly, his eyes fell upon a cute puppy. It was wagging its tail so much that it almost lost its balance. The puppy was black all over, except for its four white paws, which made it look as if it was wearing boots. It had a pink nose and its eyes looked longingly at Ronny. As soon as its door was opened, the friendly puppy leapt at Ronny and almost knocked him over. Ronny decided to adopt the puppy and his parents were quite happy about his decision too.

Before the family could adopt the dog, they were first seen by an SPCA official. He wanted to make sure that the family knew the responsibilities involved in caring for a dog and that they would give it a good and happy home. He was soon satisfied that Ronny and his parents would make good owners.

Next, the puppy was examined by a veterinarian to make sure that it was perfectly healthy. Ronny clung tightly to his new little friend. His mother asked him if he had decided on a name yet.

"Boots!" shouted Ronny. The puppy yapped excitedly, as if it liked its new name.
