SECTION C: COMPREHENSION (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

There once lived two brothers. One day, they set off together to town. The rich brother, Demetrius, rode a stallion and the poor brother, Lysander, a young mare.

At dusk, they stopped beside an inn and tethered their horses outside. The next morning, they saw three horses outside. The newcomer was a foal.

"It belongs to me!" exclaimed Demetrius.

"Whoever heard of a stallion having a foal? It was born to my mare!" Lysander retorted.

"No! It was standing close to the stallion, so it's the stallion's foal!"

The brothers decided to bring the matter to the Emperor. When the Emperor heard about the dispute, he knew the foal belonged to Lysander. However, Lysander had a twitch in his eye, which annoyed the Emperor. He then said to the brothers, "I will award the foal to whoever can solve the following riddles: what is the fastest thing in the world? What is the fattest? What's the softest and what is the most precious?"

Demetrius decided to seek advice from a woman who owed him some money. She promptly demanded that her whole debt be wiped out in exchange for the answers.

"The fastest thing in the world is my husband's bay horse," she said. "The fattest is our pig! The softest is the quilt I made for my bed and the most precious thing in the world is my three-month old baby!" Demetrius was glad that he could take the solutions back to the Emperor, otherwise he would be punished.

In the meantime, Lysander had gone back to his humble cottage, where he lived with his small daughter, and confided in her. The child firmly said, "Tell the Emperor that the fastest thing in the world is the cold north wind in winter. The fattest is the soil in our fields where crops have given life to men and animals alike, the softest thing is a child's caress and the most precious is honesty."

The day came when the two brothers were to return before the Emperor. The Emperor roared with laughter at Demetrius' answers. When Lysander spoke, his wise replies made the Emperor feel embarrassed, especially the one about honesty. The Emperor knew perfectly well that he had been dishonest in his dealings with the poor brother, for he had denied him justice.

When Lysander told the Emperor that his daughter was the one who gave him the answers, the Emperor said, "You have a wise and clever daughter. You shall be awarded the foal, together with a hundred silver ducats."

SECTION G: CLOZE PASSAGE (8 marks)

Read the passage carefully. Fill in the blank with a suitable word.

Today, one out of every ten people walking down the street is left-handed. In the past, young students who used their left hands to (29) _____ were punished for doing so. Some of them eventually learnt to write with their right hand, but only after putting in much (30) _____.

These days, parents and teachers are far more accepting and understanding. In almost every school in the world, students who are left-handed are (31) _____ to continue using their left hand to write.

An interesting (32) _____ to ask is whether there is any connection between left-handed people and creative genius. Some of history's most creative minds have been left-handed. In the category of music, Ludwig van Beethoven was left-handed. In the field of (33) _____ and technology, Benjamin Franklin and Albert Einstein were left-handed. In the (34) _____ of art, you have Leonardo da Vinci and Michelangelo. Each of these persons had a mind so exceptional as to be head and (35) _____ above anyone else in their field.

So even though it may be more (36) _____ for a left-handed person to live in a world designed for right-handed people, lefties can know that they are in good company.

SECTION H: COMPREHENSION (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Sheila looked at the audience through an opening in the curtain. Her mother had not arrived at the school hall. She looked around her and the backstage was bustling with activities. Sheila watched enviously as the dancers put on their make-up. She need not put any make-up on her face since it was completely concealed by her costume. Sheila quickly consoled herself that nobody would know even if she had stage fright later.

The seats started to fill up as more and more people arrived. Sheila quickly stepped into her bear costume and before she could put on her bear head, she had to help Lily into her bear costume and set the head on her shoulders. Lily was ready. Sheila looked around for her bear head. She was shocked when she could not find it anywhere.

Sheila searched in the big box containing all the costumes. She found a pair of wings, a magician's cloak and the closest thing to what she was looking for was the head of a parrot. She put it on and looked at herself in the mirror. She looked absolutely comical. Sheila became anxious as the minutes ticked by and the missing bear head was nowhere in sight. It was too late to get another costume.

Sheila told her teacher, Mrs Foong, about her problem. Mrs Foong looked at her and made a quick decision. She pulled the neck of her costume over her head and pinned it with some safety pins. Then she cut two holes for Sheila to find her way around. The costume was uncomfortable, but it did not spoil the fun for Sheila on the stage.

Answer the following questions. Write your answers in complete sentences.

37. Why did Sheila look at the audience through the opening in the curtain?

38. Which two-word phrase tells you that Sheila would like make-up on her face?

39. When did Sheila realise that her bear head was missing?
