In the 1790s, a French explorer, Georges Cuvier, carefully studied elephant fossils found in France. (17) _____ noted that their bones were very different from the bones of living elephants in Asia. (18) _____ were also different from the bones of elephant fossils found in Siberia.

Cuvier declared that the bones came from another elephant species that had gone extinct. At that time, (19) _____ was still generally believed that no animals had ever gone extinct. The fossil evidence led (20) _____ to propose that the Earth went through sudden changes. These changes could have wiped out a number of animal species from our planet.

Read the following passage carefully. Fill in each blank with the most suitable word.

Glass painting is a great hobby. It is simple and fun if you know these useful tips.

First, you need to collect some empty glass containers. Next, you need to prepare some paints that work well on glass surfaces. Glass paints come in a (27) _____ of colours. They are easily available in hobby shops that sell art supplies.

Before you (28) _____ painting, it is important that you protect your work surface with newspapers. Wash and dry the glass containers with a clean cloth before you begin to paint them.

You can draw and paint any picture that you like. When applying the paint, remember to wash the brush well between colours. After the paint has dried, use a black marker to (29) _____ the picture that you have just coloured. Outlining your picture will make it more attractive.

Beautifully decorated glass containers can make perfect presents or keepsakes. What are you waiting (30) _____? Grab an empty bottle from the kitchen and let your creativity flow!

Section H: Comprehension [1] (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 31 to 39.

Lottie burst through the heavy oak doors and into the dark corridor. She looked around for a suitable place to hide.

Along one side of the corridor were glass cabinets filled with antiques and faded photographs. The other side of the same corridor were display cases filled with rusty trophies.

"Lottie, I'm coming for you."

5

She heard him behind her. She could hear each pounding step he took. Her heart raced.

"Got to be quick!" she muttered and scrambled behind a nearby curtain.

"I know you're in here," sang the man. He was closer than she had realised. She peeked out ever so slightly from behind the red velvet curtain. There he was, standing in the light from one of the rooms. His towering body cast a vast shadow. He stepped forward, closer and closer to her hiding place. The silence was broken by a voice. 10

"Mr West?" called Johnson Green, the housekeeper, as he flicked the switches. "Dinner's ready!"

Suddenly, the entire corridor was flooded with light.

"Ooh goody-goody!" said the figure next to Lottie. "Lottie, you can come out now."

15

Lottie sighed with disappointment. She had been enjoying playing hide-and-seek. She stepped out from her hiding place. Mr West, a rotund gentleman with white hair, smiled at her.

Section I: Comprehension [2] (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 40 to 46.

Once upon a time, there lived a poor woodman in a great forest. Every day of his life, he would go out to fell timber. After cutting down the trees, he would transport the cut wood to the village to sell.

One day, he marked out a huge old oak which he could chop into many good planks. He then took his axe and swung it round his head to fell the tree with one stroke. Suddenly, there 5 stood before him a fairy who beseeched him to spare the tree.

"Please do not chop the old oak tree down," cried the fairy earnestly. The woodman was dazed with wonderment and could not open his mouth to utter a word.

When he found his tongue at last, he said, "I'll do as you ask."

"Thank you," answered the fairy. "And to show I'm grateful, I'll grant you three wishes." 10
With that, the fairy vanished into thin air.

The woodman slung his axe over his shoulder before he made his way home. When he reached home, he was upset to learn from his wife that she had not prepared his dinner.

"Ah!" groaned the starving woodman to his wife, sitting by the fireplace at home. "I wish I'd a spread of meat pies here before me." No sooner had he said it than a pot of piping hot 15 pies came down the chimney.

Then, the woodman remembered the fairy and explained what had happened to his wife.

"Oh, you are a fool!" she burst out. "I wish the pies were on your nose." Quick as lightning, the woodman's nose was laden with layers of meat pies. No matter how hard he 20 pulled, the pies remained stuck to it.

It did not take the woodman long to make his final wish! It was then he realized that he had wasted his good fortune.
