Beto and Mundo loved to play with ants. They made their weapon by tying matchsticks together with a string. They then used it to block the ants' way so that they could not return to their anthill.
Concha who sat next to Beto in class claimed she was the bravest. She could stand with her feet atop an anthill for the longest time!	5
One day, the three children, Beto, Mundo and Concha decided to have a contest. They first found an anthill, then took turns standing beside the anthill while the red ants climbed over their shoes. Beto and Mundo dared not move but when the first ant moved towards their ankles, they stomped away. But not Concha. She remained still as big ants crept up her shoes. One, five, ten! Beto and Mundo counted, holding their breath as the ants continued to climb. Fifteen, twenty! Twenty ants were crawling over Concha!	10
"Beto, are you sure she's not scared?" cried Mundo in a hushed voice. "She's so brave!" answered Beto, his eyes wide.
The boys stood and counted the ants. They were so caught up in this feat that they failed to notice the twenty-first ant climb up the back of Concha's sock... and bite her! She screeched in pain.	15
Immediately, the boys helped Concha to a water tap, turned it on and began to mix it with mud. They splashed the mixture on Concha's ankle. That stopped the swelling. Concha felt much relief. The children vowed never to play with the ants as it could be dangerous.	20
