The 1995 Rugby World Cup was memorable. The tournament favourites, England and Australia, were knocked out in the qualifying stages. On June 24, 1995, South Africa defeated New Zealand in the finals of the Rugby World Cup in Johannesburg, South Africa, while a special guest looked on. He was Nelson Mandela, the first president of South Africa to be elected in a fully representational democratic election the previous year. 5

In 1994, Mandela, who had spent 27 years as a political prisoner of the South African government, declared that "the time for the healing of the wounds has come". Over the course of his five-year presidency (1994-1999), he dedicated himself to building understanding and forgiveness between black and white South Africans. Blacks were traditionally excluded from the rugby team and as a result did not support the national team. Mandela's appearance at the rugby game, in spite of the national team's exclusionary history, was an effort to help heal the nation's wounds. 10

The 1995 World Cup final pitted South Africa's Springboks against the New Zealand All Blacks. Both teams came into the match undefeated, and were widely thought to be the two best teams in the tournament. 15

A drop goal by South Africa's Joel Stransky broke a 12-12 tie in extra time, giving South Africa the championship. After the game, Mandela, who wore the jersey of François Penaar, South Africa's team captain, presented the trophy. As Mandela prepared to hand over the cup to his captain, he said, "François, thank you for what you have done for our country." 20
~~Penaar~~
Penaar, with extraordinary presence of mind, replied, "No, Mr President. Thank you for what you have done."

Many said she would never make it but sixteen year old, Jessica Watson proved them wrong when she completed her month's long journey and sailed into Sydney Harbour on 15 May 2010. The Australian sailor took on a daring trip (31) _____ the world on 18 October 2009 all by herself. For (32) _____ 200 days, Jessica was all alone in her 30 foot long pink yacht. The plan was to sail non-stop and unassisted. (33) _____ the journey so no one would be allowed to give her anything and she (34) _____ not moor to any port or other boat. (35) _____ advice over radio communication was allowed.

She (36) _____ to overcome strong winds. The waves were also as high as mountains. She also had to deal (37) _____ her loneliness of being separated from families and friends. The dangerous weather did take its toll on the teenager who on her blog had reported sore muscles and bruises (38) _____ her 33-foot bright <sup>pink</sup> ~~red~~ yacht "Ella's Pink Lady" fought against the huge waves.

Having become the world's youngest person to sail around the world, Jessica Watson captured the attention and admiration of the whole world. "I wanted to challenge myself and achieve something to be proud of. I also wanted to inspire people. I hated being judged (39) _____ my appearance and other people's expectations of what a little girl was capable of. Sportsmen do have to go through vigorous training so as to build up their stamina.

It is a test of andiorance. However, there is also another factor that they belief

As Zachery Mastoon watched the news report about Flight 292, his eyes filled with anxious tears. "Some of the experts were saying that there could be a loud crash, a large fire," he recalls. "Others were saying it's not a big deal at all. For the 27-year-old electronic musician, he had other ~~concerned~~ <sup>concerns</sup> as he was onboard the crippled plane, hoping that he would make it home. <sup>5</sup>

On September 21, 2005, a mechanical glitch on a medium-sized airliner seized the attention of millions around the world. Among them were the plane's passengers who followed the live coverage via satellite TV. Passengers began flipping between the news channels. <sup>10</sup>

The first signal that something was amiss on Flight 292 occurred about 15 minutes after take off when the pilot, Scott Burke, came to the intercom. "For those of you who may have noticed," he said, "we are flying in circles. The plane's front landing gear had failed to retract," Burke explained. He would keep everyone posted as he investigated the problem. There were few worries until he flew low over Long Beach Airport. ~~The~~ officials in the airport's control tower took a closer look at the damage to its landing gear before they could attempt a landing. Fire engines and ambulances were lined up below, clearly visible from the aircraft's windows. <sup>15</sup>

Zachery thought, "This is completely out of my control. If I'm going to die, I don't want to spend my last two hours biting my nails." He quickly took out his camera and snapped digital photos of the televised image of the plane. Then he switched to Comedy Central and spent the next two hours laughing. Another passenger, Lisa, tried to call her mother on her mobile phone but could not get a signal. "I was aching to hear her voice. I wrote her a text message saying not to worry. If something happened, I would be watching over her and my brother," lamented Lisa. In row 22, Sam and Janel were talking about their past. Married for 35 years and the parents of three grown children, Sam asked Janel, "If there's anything I have ever done that you haven't forgiven me for, I ask you to forgive me today." In the meantime, the flight attendants were circulating the cabin, giving reassuring words and hugs. <sup>20</sup>

Scott had taken the decision to land the aircraft at Los Angeles International Airport in order to take advantage of its long wide ~~runway~~ <sup>run-way</sup> and modern safety equipment. However, they needed to lighten the plane so as to reduce the potential stress on the landing gear and dramatically lowering landing speed as well. The plane circled low over the Pacific Ocean for more than two hours in order to burn the fuel and lower the risk of fire upon landing. In the meantime, the flight attendants were redistributing the plane's weight, pushing the hand luggage to the rear and even some passengers to the rear. They were also giving final instructions for the emergency landing. Women wearing high heels were advised to remove them so as to avoid injury if escape slides were deployed. Those carrying ID cards in their hand baggage were advised to place them in their pockets. The passengers smiled and nodded in understanding. <sup>25</sup>

The in-flight video system was turned off well before landing. As the plane began to descend, flight attendants began chanting, "Brace! Brace! Brace!" and the passengers repeated drowning out the sound of engines. <sup>30</sup>
